Past decisions and present consequences Economic development, urban renewal central discussion during Sidney City Council meeting

Joshua Wood, Stevenson Newspapers

On November 8, while voters were deciding the future of the Sidney City Council, the governing body held a lengthy discussion about the past, present and future of the city.

The discussion was initiated by Victoria Loghry, who owns buildings and businesses in Sidney including the Pedalers Corner at 840 9th Avenue. Loghry's concerns were twofold; one centered around plans to landscape around Pedalers Corner and another dealt with electrical conduit on another building downtown resulting from agreements made by previous property owners. A common thread through the discussion was economic development and urban renewal.

Gentlemen's Agreements

A concern raised by Loghry repeatedly throughout the discussion was structural damage to her building in downtown Sidney due to electrical conduit. According to Loghry, the building has concrete and conduit on three sides of the building which runs electricity to surrounding properties.

"My building is a masonry building. Masonry is designed to move but now because it has all the electricity on it and it's got a unistrap that ties the huge conduit that runs along the building, it's tied in there so that the building can't move even though it was designed to," said Loghry. "It's a structural issue."

Mike Palmer, electric superintendent for the City of Sidney, clarified that the running of the conduit was something outside of the city's purview.

"Typically, city policy is we get it to the property line and then let the property owner take it to their metering point. No different than anyone's house," said Palmer. "They own the wire that goes from the property line to the metering point. The only thing the city owns on that is the metering equipment and the potential boxes that the meter sits in."

Palmer added that, in the case of electric running across one property to another, those were agreements made between property owners. This, said Loghry, was part of her contention as the issues she was dealing with were made by two parties who were no longer involved in the decision.

"You are saddled with previous owners' decisions, I will say that," said Palmer.

At the moment, however, there seems to be little recourse for Loghry. According to J Leef, city attorney, the code dictating the city take the electrical service to the property line was per state statute. Palmer stated that any electrical work done in Nebraska would be approved through the state electrical office, but that it was likely there was little if any codes related to structural engineering of a building.

Marshall Hall, chief building official, said he agreed with Loghry that something needed to be done.

"Vicky brings up an excellent point that some of this work is just being done willy nilly and not having somebody who really knows about brick, I'm not that guy by the way," said Hall. "I do know that, in Denver, whenever we had anything attached to a building, especially at height, it had to be engineered."

The sticking point, however, was that in Denver the cost of the engineer was borne by the property owner which could be cost prohibitive to small business owners in Sidney.

Jobbers Canyon

Though agreement between previous property owners was a major point of contention for Loghry, another issue she raised was that incentives for corporations which don't seem to be available for small businesses. Loghry cited Omaha and Jobbers Canyon as an urban renewal failure and an example of a larger corporation given "the keys to the city."

Jobbers Canyon, according to moderncities.com, holds the distinction of the largest National Register historic district lost to urban renewal to date. The 21 block economic center of Omaha was added to the register in 1979 but a decade later, it was demolished for ConAgra's corporate headquarters. In 2015, ConAgra left Omaha and relocated to Chicago, Illinois.

"That's the way big businesses run," said Loghry. "We make promises to all these businesses. Not the small guys. We bring in job incentives, promising all these bigger companies 'We'll give you tap dances, we'll give you tips, we'll give you all this stuff.' Meanwhile the people that live here, that stay here, that persevere here don't get anything."

Councilmember Bob Olsen later asked Loghry for clarification on her comment asking for instances in which Sidney had made promises to larger businesses. Loghry

Cheyenne County heads to the polls

Unofficial results to be certified November 17 says county clerk

By Joshua Wood, Stevenson Newspapers

The people of Cheyenne County went to the polls last Tuesday to make their voices heard. While some incumbents survived challenges, others will bid farewell to their office at the end of December. Among those who are safe include Cheyenne County Commissioner Phil Sanders, who was challenged by James Popovich on a write-in campaign. County Assessor Mel Keller, meanwhile, lost to challenger Jordan Hajek by a 2-to-1 margin.

According to Beth Fiegenschuh, Cheyenne County Clerk, the county canvassing board will meet at 1:30 p.m. today (November 17) to certify the results. The complete list of results found on page 3B were unofficial as of press time.

Raiders One-Act Play Team Takes Fifth At Western Conference

Sidney High School's Theater students travelled to Chadron on Saturday to compete in the Western Conference One Act Competition. Three judges evaluated the performance of students from Chadron, Alliance, Gering, Mitchell, Scottsbluff as well as Sidney high schools.

The Sidney theater students performed the one-act play, "Exposure", and placed fifth in the competition, with a score of 158/14.

Two performers from each school were given "Outstanding Acting" medals. The winners from Sidney were Duncan Carrasco and Madi Packer. Dru Weimer and Cayden Carrasco were awarded Outstanding Supporting Actor certificates cited Camping World, saying she believed they approached Sidney as a way to get a better deal from Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Gering won the event with their performance of "Silenced on Barbour Street, followed by Scottsbluff with their performance of "Sillyheart", and Chadron took third place with their performance of "The Secrets of Madame Defarge".

"That's always the number one question that a bigger business will ask. 'Sure, we're going to come to your community. What are you going to do for us? What are you going to give us?'" said Loghry. "I'm sorry. I've got boots on the ground, I'm invested here. What are you going to do for me? We should be higher up the priority chain than somebody like Camping World."

Eye to the future

Neither the governing body nor city staff appeared to disagree with Loghry on her points. Both the city and Loghry admitted that there was little that could be done in the immediate future, but that plans need to be both made and followed.

"We've watched parking issues because there's no signage where the public should be parking, could be parking, it's just kind of a free-for-all. We've seen dangerous U-turns, accidents. There's an immediate need for public restrooms downtown. If you want people to mill about, hang out downtown, we need the restrooms," said Loghry. "That's still just some place on a priority list that's been circling around for more than 10 years. I'm a real business. We need it right now, we don't need it in 20 years."

Mayor Roger Galloway said the first step for the city would likely be to examine the city codes and city policy.

"Part of it is we have to identify what are the existing codes and policies that are in place and check to see if those are being followed or not. That's the starting point," said Galloway. "The second part is, do we need to identify other codes and policies so that we deal with this in a more consistent manner?"

The next meeting of the Sidney City Council will be at 7 p.m. on November 22 at Sidney City Hall.

Watching The Counters What Really Happens After You Deposit Your Ballot

Mike Motz
Chatter from the Cheap Seats

I had never actually participated in activity like monitoring election counts in the past. In fact the extent of my "civic duty" prior to November 8 was figuring out new and creative ways of getting out of jury duty when called, with great success on my part. My personal policy is to avoid courtrooms or involvement with government functions, no matter how benign.

So when I was asked to observe the ballot counting for Cheyenne County last Tuesday night, I decided that it was well past time to get over my own reluctance and participate in a civic activity. A very important activity, if not very glamorous.

I showed up at the Cheyenne County Courthouse at about 6:45 p.m. for the 7 p.m. start of counting. As I walked down the hall towards the commissioner's meeting room, I was greeted by a Cheyenne County Sheriff's deputy, then escorted to the "secure" counting area. "Secure" as in two doorways with stanchions with canvas-type belts across the entrance. Velvet ropes would have been nicer, but I didn't complain. They had coffee inside.

In the counting room were seven people comprising the counting Board, plus a representative from Electronic Systems & Software to operate the DS450 Counting Machine, and we were quickly joined by Beth Fiegenschuh, the Cheyenne County Clerk. The members of the Counting Board are appointed by the Clerk, are registered voters and represent different parties, and are paid for their time.

After signing an affidavit saying I would not speak with, or interfere with the counters once the count started and would not use my cell phone once the counting began, we were ready to go. It was a little bit after 7 p.m., and election workers started to bring in the ballot boxes from the nine precincts in the county. The Cheyenne County electoral map is divided into nine precincts, plus one for absentee/mail in ballots, for a total of 10 counting precincts. The tenth box, the absentee/mail in box, was already in the counting room when I arrived.

Starting with the tenth precinct, the ballots were removed from the box and the divided into smaller stacks. The stacks were then placed in a sorting machine called a "jogger" for a moment to ensure uniformity and ease of machine processing.

As the ballots were being sorted and stacked to put into the counting machine, it seemed by visual observation that voter turnout was heavy. The stacks were given to the ESS representative who then fed the ballots into the machine. After they were scanned, they were then secured as counted on a separate table. About twenty minutes into the counting, I saw two ballots get rejected by the machine. The ballots were taken out, smoothed over by hand by a member of the Counting Board, then run through the machine again, which accepted them. During the time I observed, a relatively small number of ballots needed to be "smoothed out", then put into the machine again. Pretty impressive work for the machine.

I also noticed two ballots that would not scan even after smoothing, so one member of the Counting Board obtained a new ballot while another member read the votes that had been cast, and the first member filled in the new ballot. At least that's what appeared to be happening, as I was not allowed to ask questions. From the time I observed, very few ballots needed to be "smoothed" to go through the machine, and I only saw two ballots be fixed with new ballot forms.

During the counting, I noticed that a few ballots were rejected completely as they did not have the proper initials from election officials at the bottom of the ballot. Once you go to vote in person and you put your ballot in the brown ballot holder and the election worker looks at it before the actual ballot goes into the box, they are checking to make sure both initials are there. In every election, a few will be missed, which is completely normal.

A few more ballots came up rejected around 8:45, and I heard the County Clerk discussing how the representative from ESS was batching the ballots for the machine. The counting continued in the quiet room without much incident. Early speculation by the Counting Board that they hoped to be done by 9 p.m. was becoming a long-ago hoped for pipe dream. At about 9:30, Beth Fiegenschuh came back into the room and told the non-members of the Counting Board that it would be a very long time before they were finish, and we could leave if we wanted. Two and a half hours of "observing" was enough for me, so I packed up my belongings and went home. I then opened my laptop and went to the Cheyenne County website for election results, but none had posted. I refreshed the screen consistently until I woke up on my couch at 1 a.m., with results still not posted.

I spoke with Beth Fiegenschuh two days after the election. Everything went smoothly, and although there was heavier turnout and write in ballots that required a little extra time to sort, the main reason why it took longer than usual seemed to be that the ESS representative was placing the ballots into the counting machine in much smaller stacks than they had done in previous elections.

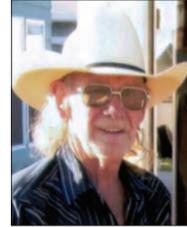

I can't attest to other election counting processes, like in Arizona and a few other states, but what I had witnessed here in Cheyenne County was a count that was meticulously and properly organized, observed by witnesses of all parties and efficiently completed. Although it took a little longer than anticipated, the count was done correctly and all voters can be satisfied that their voices were heard.

Developing Nebraska's Next Generation of Workplace Leaders

Over the past year, Nebraska set an all-time high for employment. Our rapid growth is creating thousands of great-paying jobs. There are currently over 50,000 openings listed on the State's job site: NEworks.Nebraska.gov. That's more than double the number of unemployed Nebraskans who are looking for work.

Our state's historically strong labor market is great news for Nebraskans looking for their next career opportunity. At the same time, it poses challenges for companies looking to hire great people. In this labor market, employers must be creative to recruit and retain the talent they need to grow.

At the State, we're partnering with schools, colleges, and businesses to grow our apprenticeship programs in Nebraska. Apprenticeships strengthen Nebraska's workforce by connecting students and individuals in career transition with the great career opportunities available across our state.

For example, apprenticeship programs are helping construction companies find the workers they need to take on major projects. Construction is booming in Nebraska. Lincoln and Omaha set records for building permit value in 2021. In Lincoln, the $1.2 billion of building permits in 2021 was $400 million higher than in any previous year. We've grown our construction workforce from under 49,000 in 2014 to nearly 60,000 today. Yet, the demand for skilled craftsmen has increased just as fast.

Hawkins Construction has joined the State's registered apprenticeship program to recruit and train construction craft laborers. Hawkins is helping to grow Nebraska in big ways. The company tackled some of the most challenging rebuilding projects the State faced after the 2019 floods, such as the Mormon Canal

Pete Ricketts
Governor of Nebraska

Bridge in Niobrara and the Highway 281 bridge near Spencer. Currently, Hawkins is constructing the Lincoln South Beltway—a roadway our capital city has dreamed of for years. To deliver these critical projects on time, Hawkins relies on a team of highly skilled workers. Apprentices who sign on with Hawkins gain experience on Nebraska's biggest infrastructure projects, while receiving classroom training from Hawkins teammates who are experts in their field. At the same time, Hawkins benefits from having apprentices perform meaningful work to move projects forward.

Apprenticeships are also helping our healthcare industry address labor shortages. The Nebraska Departments of Economic Development, Labor, and Health and Human Services are partnering with Bellevue University and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska (BCBSNE) on an innovative IT apprenticeship model called Ignite Nebraska. It's designed to introduce Nebraskans in North and South Omaha to careers in software development, computer programming, and database management. Apprentices earn while they learn ($21/hour), are eligible for BCBSNE employee benefits, and receive free tuition. They split their time between classroom training at Bellevue and on-the-job learning at BCBSNE. After completing the 6-12 month program, apprentices can apply for full-time Associate Developer positions at BCBSNE. The program is a gateway to great-paying IT careers for Nebraskans, and it's helping Blue Cross find skilled talent to further integrate technology into healthcare.

Nebraska's high schools and colleges play a key role in the State's apprenticeship programs, partnering with local employers to offer rewarding apprenticeship opportunities. Student apprentices get paid to learn their trade, earn course credits, and gain nationally recognized credentials. Stefany Gomez is a great example of a young leader who has developed sought-after skills through apprenticeships. Stefany took part in Grand Island's Career Pathways Institute (machining pathway) and also apprenticed at CNH while in high school. She's now attending Central Community College in Hastings and apprenticing with Hornady Manufacturing. In May 2022, she won the Nebraska state championship at the SkillsUSA competition for her proficiency as a CNC milling specialist. This year, the State invested $60 million of federal funding to help our community colleges add capacity. Additionally, a coalition of Nebraska community colleges won a $4 million federal grant this summer to increase the availability of apprenticeships.

At the State, we've designed a customized apprenticeship program to grow our corrections workforce. In 2020, the Nebraska Legislature approved my recommendation to launch a workforce education partnership between Peru State College and the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services to help more Nebraskans find opportunities in the field of public safety. The Corrections Leadership Scholarship Program is tailored to students interested in careers in criminal justice, with a focus on corrections leadership. Student apprentices receive on-the-job training that prepares them to take on key roles at the Tecumseh State Correctional Institution. The initiative has made an important contribution to our success growing the State's corrections workforce. It's exactly the kind of creative approach we need to prepare for our future workforce needs as well as to keep Nebraska's graduates here for their careers. It's also setting an example nationally for how corrections agencies and colleges can collaborate.

I have proclaimed November 14-20, 2022, as Apprenticeship Awareness Week in Nebraska to highlight the many ways apprenticeships are helping us build a world-class workforce in Nebraska. In federal fiscal year (FFY) 2022, we added more new employers to our apprenticeship program than in FFYs 2018, 2019, 2020, and 2021 combined! There are now more than 4,000 active apprentices in Nebraska. If your business is interested in launching an apprenticeship program, please contact the Nebraska Department of Labor at ndol.apprenticeship@nebraska.gov. If you have questions about the State's ongoing work to connect Nebraskans to great-paying careers, please contact me at pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov or 402-471-2244.

Straight Talk From Steve ~ Tax Incentive Programs

When it comes to Nebraska's tax incentive programs, the costs outweigh the benefits. What the State of Nebraska needs is total tax reform, not more incentive programs for businesses. So, today I would like to shed some light on how much Nebraska's tax incentive programs have been hurting the taxpayers of our State.

The Nebraska Advantage Act was passed back in 2005 primarily as a means for keeping Con Agra headquartered in Omaha. The program did not work. In 2015 the State of Illinois wooed Con Agra to their state by offering the company an even better tax incentive program through their state's Economic Development for a Growing Economy (EDGE) program. Illinois offered Con Agra $630,000 per year in tax credits if it moved at least 150 jobs to Illinois for the next 15 years.

The Nebraska Department of Revenue recently released a report on Nebraska's tax incentive programs and the numbers do not look good.

Steve Erdman
47th District

From January 1, 2006 through June 30, 2022 businesses have earned almost $1.8 billion in tax credits through the Nebraska Advantage Act. During that same period of time businesses have cashed in on almost $910 million in tax credits. According to the report, there remains about $850 million in outstanding tax credits yet to be used. That's a lot of money out of the State's coffers.

Whenever businesses cash in on these kinds of tax credits, taxpayers always feel the pain. The incentives offered through the Nebraska Advantage Act and the ImagiNe Nebraska Act come in the form of tax credits. So, whenever businesses use their tax credits, it leaves a gigantic hole in the amount of revenue coming into the state. Whenever that happens the State has to fill in the gap. Theoretically, these businesses could cash in all of their remaining $850 million in outstanding tax credits in a single year and devastate our State Budget.

These tax incentive programs make it difficult to create a state-wide budget. Because I serve on the Legislature's Appropriations committee, I see first-hand what kind of havoc these incentive programs wreak on our state budget. Because those of us who serve on the Appropriations Committee never know when businesses plan to use their tax credits, crafting the state budget always becomes a kind of guessing game for lawmakers in Lincoln.

Those who advocate for these kinds of incentive programs for businesses like to tout about how many new jobs they bring into Nebraska each year. But the number of new jobs created by these incentive programs does not justify the expense. For example, the report indicates that these tax incentive programs have created 1,754 new jobs each year. If we estimate that each new worker would pay the State roughly $4,000 annually in income taxes and sales taxes, it would take the State the next 21 years for these new jobs to finally pay for themselves.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics

Nebraska has the fourth lowest unemployment rate in the nation set at 2.2 percent. Businesses are begging for employees and we see help wanted signs everywhere we travel around the State. Nebraska does not have enough workforce to sustain our current workforce needs. So, even if these incentive programs were to create another 1,754 new jobs, there is no guarantee that there would be qualified employees waiting in line to fill these jobs.

What Nebraska really needs is total tax reform. People living in Nebraska continue to suffer under our State's heavy tax burden and broken tax system. Tax incentive programs for businesses, such as the Nebraska Advantage Act and the ImagiNe Nebraska Act do absolutely nothing to help the average taxpayer and they leave businesses worrying about when they might have to move to another state with a better tax incentive program. I believe businesses will want move to Nebraska once Nebraska adopts the best tax code in the nation, and the EPIC Option Consumption Tax remains the best answer to Nebraska tax problem.

"Settle it in your heart not to meditate what to answer, for I will give you wisdom that cannot be contradicted or resisted. It will turn out for you as an occasion for testimony." Luke 21:13-15. The final 's' in w.e.t.c.o.w.s.p.p.i.e.s.s. represents Holy Spirit: Helper, Comforter, Leader and Guide; He rises within us to bring (p.p.i.e.s.) physical, psychological, intellectual, emotional and social chaos to order. Therefore, we boldly go where angels fear to tread, because all earthly authority rests in God's Man. Genesis 1:26-28

One year I was privileged to instruct seven candidates for the

Miss Rodeo North Dakota title. I was not a judge so I could associate with the girls. We learned to walk and talk like ladies, how to engage a crowd with a smile and a wave, how to find our 'power color', answer hard questions when interviewed and how to be an outstanding ambassador for our state. All went well. Then came goat tying.

Behind the chutes, I was encouraging the girls prior to their run. The first two came back with a 'no time'. What?! I inquired of the arena boss. Seems they could not stake the goat down and he ran from the tie-ers! Big, burly, cowboy types had run out of solutions. Family, friends and news media wondered from their stadium seats, while announcers proposed possibilities.

"Beloved, God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power (Holy Spirit), love (Father) and a sound mind (Jesus' mastery of self.)" II Timothy 2:7

I handed my hat to the chaperone, tightened my gloves, strode into the arena, grabbed the goat's stake, pulled him to the proper location, sat down in the dirt and gave the "all clear!" A 2,000 pound horse sped toward me at 30 miles per hour and slid to a stop. An overly excited 125 pound girl flew off his back, grabbed the goat by its legs, tied him down, hands up for time: 5.2 seconds. This was repeated by six other contestants. I escorted the goat back to his keeper, reclaimed my hat and congratulated the girls on an excellent showing.

Miss Rodeo North Dakota was crowned amid appropriate pomp, circumstance and joy. "Billy" goat and I graced the front page of the Bismarck Tribune.

It was long years before I realized how Holy Spirit had prepared me, protected me, promoted and perfected me that amazing day.

Love has been perfected in us that we may have boldness because as He is, so are we, in this world. The anointing which you have received from Him abides in you is true and is not a lie. There is no fear in love, but mature love casts out fear in that he who fears [torment] has not been made perfect in love. We love Him because He first loved us." I John 2:20, 27; 4:4-19

What's Your Legacy?

A few weeks ago Dorothy and I, along with one of our daughters, made a trip to California so my wife could participate in her high school class celebration of their 50th year since graduation. It was the first time in many years since we last visited the Napa and Vallejo areas. Way back then I was stationed at Mare Island Naval Base located outside of Vallejo, across the bay from San Francisco. So much has changed since our last visit that I hardly recognized the place.

We visited several grave sites, including Dorothy's parents'. We located the home she grew up in and where she and I were married in her folks' front yard. During the class reunion Dorothy was fondly remembered by many of her former classmates. And even more impressive was the visit by Karla. She was a former neighbor of Dorothy's and was one of the flower girls at our wedding 50 years ago.

Thoughts from a Grey-
Haired Point of View

We also visited the city of Winnemucca, NV, where my parents and I started a newspaper from scratch, called the Humboldt Sun. After our marriage, Dorothy also worked at the Sun. The paper is still in existence and has grown and prospered with the town and county. It was interesting to note that all the old files of the original newspaper we founded were still there and the new editor recognized me at our first introduction. In fact one of my most famous news photos was hanging in a prominent place in the front entry to the business. It was a photo of the old Humboldt Hotel on fire that I took in the early 1970s, and was also featured on a Nevada Bell magazine cover.

In both communities there were people who remembered us – mostly good memories! Even though our physical appearance has changed, people and friends from our past remembered us for the things we did and stood for. We consistently stood for things that were right (morally and legally). We often went beyond just standing and became active supporters. Among some of the things Dorothy and I were front line activist in was in the formation of the Humboldt County Search and Rescue organization, and the Hot Spots – a volunteer range fire fighting team. We supported local, state and national organizations that stood for supporting our men and women in uniform – from local police to those in our nation's military, and still do.

There were many other things we did that were not public nor publicized. Church activities always played a large part of our lives. And through it all Dorothy and I managed to raise five of our own children and a sixth – an adopted granddaughter.

We were not, and are not now, rich by any means. At one point we went bankrupt and lost every thing we had. It took years to rebuild our financial life, but God stood by us and we always had a roof of some kind over us and something to eat. Our children, grandchildren and those who knew us witnessed how God enabled us to weather those stormy years. It was tempting, I admit, to just throw up my hands and quit. But Dorothy stood by me and Jesus strengthened us to weather the storm.

All this, and so much more is the true legacy that my wife and I are passing on to our children and grandchildren. A man's and a woman's legacy is so much more than money and physical possessions. What will your legacy be? Loads of money and kids who never knew you because you were so busy making a living? Will memories about you be about a life of gracious service to one and all? The choices we make every day of our lives will be used to establish how and why we are remembered by family, friends and neighbors.

What to know about sustainable investing

You may have heard about “sustainable investing.” But if you’re not familiar with it, you may have some questions: What does it involve? Is it right for me? Can I follow a sustainable investing strategy and still get the portfolio performance I need to reach my goals?

Sustainable investing can be defined in different ways, with different terminologies. However, one way to look at a sustainable approach is by thinking of it as investing in a socially conscious way which may involve two broad categories: environmental, social and governance (ESG) investing and values-based investing.

As its name suggests, ESG investing incorporates a broad range of environmental, social and governance risks and opportunities, along with traditional financial measures, when making investment decisions. This approach may have a neutral impact on performance because it maintains a focus on managing risk, traditional fundamental analysis and diversification. Here’s a quick look at the ESG elements:

- Environmental – Companies may work to reduce carbon emissions, invest in renewable energy, decrease pollution and conserve water resources.
- Social – A business may promote gender and pay equality within its workforce, and maintain positive labor relations and safe working conditions for employees.

- Governance – Companies distinguished by good governance may institute strong ethics policies, provide transparent financial reporting and set policies to ensure it has an independent, objective board of directors.

You can pursue an ESG investing approach through individual stocks, mutual funds or exchange-traded funds (ETFs), which hold a variety of investments similar to mutual funds, but are generally passively managed – that is, they do little or no trading. As an ESG investor, you don’t necessarily have to sacrifice performance because ESG investments generally fare about as well as the wider investment universe. Some investments may even gain from the ESG approach. For example, a company that invests in renewable energy may benefit from the move away from fossil fuel sources.

Now, let’s move on to values-based investing. When you follow a values-based approach, you can focus on specific themes where you may choose to include or exclude certain types of investments that align with your personal values.

So, you could refrain from investing in segments of the market, such as tobacco or firearms, or in companies that engage in certain business practices, such as animal testing. On the other hand, you could actively seek out investments that align with your values. For instance, if you’re interested in climate change, you could invest in a mutual fund or ETF that contains companies in the solar or clean energy industries.

One potential limitation of values-based investing is that it may decrease the diversification of your portfolio and lead to materially lower returns due to narrowly focused investments, prioritization of non-financial goals and too many exclusions.

Ultimately, if you choose to include a sustainable investing approach, you will want – as you do in any investing scenario – to choose those investments that are suitable for your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon.

If sustainable investing interests you, give it some thought – you may find it rewarding to match your money with your beliefs.

Life Is About Thanksgiving

One of the beautiful events in USA is the commemoration of a harvest festival celebrated by the Pilgrim Fathers in 1621, which is now held every year on the fourth Thursday in November and is called the Thanksgiving Day. As we are drawing closer to Thanksgiving Day, my thoughts are all about being grateful. As we know Thanksgiving Day is an invitation to remind ourselves that we should live a life of gratitude. When we look around, we see the measure of gratitude perhaps getting reduced day by day. Jesus asked, "Where are the other nine?" (Luke 17:17). I feel, those nine are getting multiplied in our society now a days. The exceptional one who is a Samaritan stands his eyes closed, hands clenched and in absolute gratitude to the Lord who healed him. Yes, it is almost always true to say that it is those who are marginalized, downtrodden and who stay at the periphery of the society who are most grateful for the benefits they receive.

Why can't we take the invitation to live a life of gratitude a little more seriously? We know that almost all the religions of the world invite their followers to live gratefully. Buddhism has a tradition of many types of meditations focused on gratitude. One of the types is to wake up every morning and be grateful for one's own breath. Is it a small thing to realize that this morning too you are breathing? Is breathing itself a negligible thing? Is it not what life is all about? So, stay aware of your breathing every morning, inhaling with gratitude in your heart and exhaling with a smile on your face. If we train our kids to do it from childhood, I am sure they will stay grateful persons all through their lives.

Another method of mindfulness in Buddhism is Tea Meditation. It is said that an old man in Japan went into a restaurant and ordered a cup of tea. Before starting to drink, he bent down and brought his forehead to the knees of the waiter who served it to him. In Japanese culture, it is symbolic of the acknowledgment of respect and gratitude one has for the other. And then the old man took the cup of tea, brought it close to his chest, looked into it very gratefully and drank it slowly one sip at a time. This action of the old man made the owner of the restaurant reflect about the magnitude of gratitude the old man had towards the universe and the cosmic light and power behind it. So, the owner left the restaurant and followed the old man. After long years of wandering and searching, he came back and started what is today called the Tea Meditation. If you ever see any flyer about Tea Meditation, there will be only one sentence in it: "Come, let's have a cup of tea." What does that mean? It means, come, let's look at this world a little more gratefully.

The man who lived most gratefully on the face of the earth is Jesus of Nazareth. Look at the word 'bread' in the gospels. Whenever he took bread in his hands, it is mentioned that he gave thanks. He knew that the bread that he ate was not the fruit of his own sweat nor of his friends, but it was the generous gift of his fellow Palestinians. New Testament in fact rewrites the pride of the Old Testament. What do I mean? We read in Genesis, "Eat of the sweat of your brow" (Chapter 3:19). New Testament knows that this is just not possible. Whole of our life is spent by eating the fruit of the labor of somebody else.

There is an incident that took place in the life of Mother Teresa. Mother as we know established several destitute homes, orphanages etc. all over the world. Once she visited the children at one of these orphanages. Some children of that orphanage brought a bag full of sugar to Mother and told her, "Mother, all of us here did an act of mortification for the past one month. We did not use sugar in our coffee and tea (In India usually everyone adds sugar to coffee and tea). We know that there are hundreds and thousands of kids like us whom you are taking care of. Kindly use this sugar for any of your institutes." No doubt, those kids must have surely heard Mother Teresa saying, "It is not out of our abundance that we should give; we must give out of our poverty." And only those who have profound gratitude in their hearts can give without any reserve even out of their poverty and misery.

Thanksgiving Day may bring in lots of memories of previous celebrations. But the memory that is upper most in our hearts must be undoubtedly of gratefulness. Real gratitude is not shown merely by words. Saying 'thank you' to people for their good deeds, sending a 'thank you' card to our dear ones etc. are all good. But that is not enough. What is desirable is to show gratitude through a life of gratitude.

You may be shocked to hear that at home, I never learned to say 'thank you' to anyone. In fact, I don't think any Indian parents ever taught their children to say 'thanks' to anyone. The Indian cultural ethos presupposes that gratefulness is not to be communicated through words, but it should be primarily in the hearts. It should be a way of life. In other words, gratitude is the term that denotes that we exist absolutely not because of our own merits but because of the compassion of God and others. And that awareness brings in tears into our eyes, and we stand our heads bent, and our hands joined in front of our God and our universe.

Local Farmers Reap the Awards

South Platte Natural Resources District and Natural Resources Conservation Service Host the 2022 Conservation Awards Banquet

SIDNEY, Nebraska - On November 8, 2022, the South Platte Natural Resources District (SPNRD) and the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) hosted the 2022 Conservation Awards Banquet at the Elks Lodge in Sidney.

The award program began in 1956, at that time, a Conservation Farm Award was given in each of our three counties: Kimball - Cheyenne - Deuel. In 1995, the program was amended to one Farm Award and added Tree Planter, Grassland Manager, and Environmental Educator awards; and, in 2010, a Community Environmental Impact award. Nominations for these awards can come from: SPNRD, NRCS, Schools or Residents in our district.

This year, four awards were presented. The Conservation Farm to Tony Walker - Walker Farms, Tree Planter to Gene Dickinson, Grassland Manager to Marian Yoshimoto, and the Community Environmental Impact to John Heidemann and Jim Shoup - City of Kimball.

Tony Walker, Walker Farms in Cheyenne County, was awarded the Conservation Farm Award. This award recognizes producers that use best conservation practices and incorporate a total farm plan that benefits not only their operation but helps preserve natural resources for future generations. Tony is a progressive farmer and has utilized many conservation practices to improve soil health, decrease herbicide and pesticide use, and reduce soil erosion.

Gene Dickinson, Cheyenne County, was awarded the Tree Planter Award. This award recognizes the commitment to tree plantings and the care and maintenance that has been given after the initial planting. For nearly 20 years, Gene has been dedicated and consistent to replanting every year. He has one of the most diverse tree and shrub plantings in our district, which also addresses the needs of wildlife and wind erosion.

Marian Yoshimoto, Deuel County, received the Grassland Manager Award. This award recognizes individuals who show good stewardship in grassland use and management. The Yoshimoto's drilled a new well, installed a solar pump system and replaced their stock water tank which were instrumental in helping them manage their grasslands. They monitored their grasslands weekly and based their rotational grazing system on the rangeland conditions.

John Heidemann and Jim Shoup, City of Kimball, received the Community Environmental Impact Award. This award recognizes programs carried out by groups, individuals, agencies, or businesses which have a significant environmental benefit for an urban area within a town or city. John is diligent about his work and instrumental in selecting new trees for Gotte Park to keep diversity in the tree inventory. In addition to their principal responsibilities, every year Jim and John host an Arbor Day celebration for the 4th grade students at Mary Lynch school. Students learn the various benefits of trees, review planting instructions and tree care. They also learn about post-planting practices of watering and mulching to improve the health of the tree. The Arbor Day celebration reminds students about the value and purpose of trees and that their existence is vital.

North Elementary Third Grade Honors Veterans

The third grade classes of Mrs. Gillham, Mrs. Dickman and Mrs. Jessen and Ms. McDaniels honored our veterans Thursday night at Sidney High School's auditorium with the program, "This is America". The individual classes performed songs such as "We Celebrate America" and "Free Like Me", then all classes came together for a rendition of "The Lights of Freedom". ## Wiedeburg, McKay Named Coaches Of The Year

Sidney's great tradition in Cross Country and Track and Field was again recognized as Sidney High School Head Coaches Donna Wiedeburg and Matt McKay were named Coaches of the Year.

Wiedeburg was named 2021-22 State Coach of the Year for Girls Cross Country by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) and Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA). This annual award is to recognize Nebraska coaches for their dedication and achievement to the coaching profession. For sixteen years, Weideburg has coached the Sidney Middle School and High School Cross country programs, for ten years as an assistant coach and the past six years as head coach. Wiedeburg thanked all of the coaches and student athletes that have participated in the Red Raider Cross country program, saying, "The Sidney Raider Cross Country program is a family and I'm honored to be a part of it. I am hopeful for the positive impact this program will continue to have on its runners."

The staff of the Sun-Telegraph would like to recognize and honor the Red Raider Cross Country teams and the Red Raider Football team for their outstanding seasons. The big number of All-District selections and All-State selection would not be possible without the hard work of the coaching staffs and the teammates of the individual selected. Without teammates playing well, individuals cannot excel. We also would like to thank the tremendous support by the Sidney student body, parents and fans for consistently showing up for games and tournaments and cheering on their fellow classmates, their children and young members of our community to give their best and competing in a fair and sportsmanlike way. The Red Raider fans are special and always give their teams an extra edge in competing, whether at home or away. All of the accolades won by our special student-athletes would not be possible without the support of the entire community.

State Scraps

A great amount of sickness in Omaha. The Hall county liquor dealers are going to resist the contemplated rise in license.

Nebraska City expects to handle $1,600,000 worth of farms products by May.

There are six divorce cases to be tried in the district court of Otoe County at this term of court.

Franklin County's debt amounts to $115,000 – just that much greater than the debt of Cheyenne County.

The eastward shipments of wheat and corn from Nebraska still keep up the average of 40 cars per day.

"Nebraskian", The wolves are killing the sheep over south, and the ranchmen are beginning to buy poison for the pests.

Two female teachers in the Dakota City schools had $1000 on deposit in an Ohio savings bank that failed last week.

The cattle men of Victoria, Custer County are paying forty cents per bushel for corn and potatoes, and fifty cents for oats.

A couple in Seward County got married and lived very happily together for three days, when the bride decamped taking her husband's smoothing irons and money.

In Saunders County a man named Mills sends his three year old daughter a mile or two away from home in a storm after a plug of tobacco. Child is found at midnight drenched through, claspings at the tobacco, is carried to a neighbor and life saved.

A young man named Grass, of Nebraska City, and a daughter of Joseph Smith, of Lincoln, eloped last Monday. The young lady being a minor, the parties had to head to parts unknown to obtain a marriage license, which was accomplished in a foreign State after a buggy ride of 250 miles.

Local Gossip

Joe Klein, the insurance agent, reached here Thursday for another life-saving campaign.

Bert Bates, of Lodgepole, was here Wednesday with a bunch of horses which he shipped to Lincoln, Neb.

Charles Hower is building a large stone milk house and contemplates building an addition to his residence.

Wm. Stuht had a force of men at work this week rebuilding the post dam, to secure the usual crop of ice this winter.

Dr. Salisbury, painless dentist, will work in Sidney Wednesday and Thursday, November 26th and 27th. Teeth extracted without pain. Gold crowns as low as $4. Call early and have your teeth looked at before cold weather.

A new business enterprise for our city is the Sidney Cigar Manufacturing Co., which has leased quarters in the Oberfelder block. The firm is composed of Geo. Wagner, the veteran cigar manufacturer of North Platte, who has associated with him Mr. J.A. Hayes, an expert cigar maker. These parties have been busily engaged this week arranging their business quarters and expect to have everything in working order by the first of the month.

M. J. Lundell, foreman of the Union Pacific section at Potter, was attending district court this week, being on the jury panel. Mr. Lundell favored this office with a call for the purpose of paying his subscription. He informed us that his house had a narrow escape from destruction on Thursday of last week from a fire started by a match dropped by his little boy in the garret. The fire got a good start, and doubtless would have consumed the house but for the prompt assistance of neighbors who arrived in time to subdue it. Mr. Lundell, who was out on the section at the time, desires us to express his hearty thanks to his neighbors for their timely aid.

Armistice Day Is Well Observed

All Citizens Helped American Legion and Auxiliary in Observance of the Greatest Day

The day that brought peace to the world after the bloodiest war of all history was celebrated here with due ceremony. All business was suspended for two hours in the forenoon during the parade and program. First, the Light band came into view, playing spiritedly. They have improved wonderfully and make an aggregation in which to have civic pride. Following them came the colors, the firing squad, the American Legion, Sidney Post and others, among these were 127 men of the 13th cavalry of Fort Russell, Wyoming, then the G.A.R. In an automobile. It was quite an imposing parade. It was shortened in the line of march because of the bleakness of the air. One thing noticeable was the removal of hats as the flag went by was quite general, very few forgetting.

Hooch Peddler Draws Heavy Fine

Thursday about four o'clock in Judge McClenaghan's court a local citizen was tried on the charge of possession of intoxicating liquors and found guilty. A second charge of selling was filed and the man proven guilty on this also. He got one hundred and costs on each count, making two hundred and eight dollars or so.

Fraudulent Action Results In Arrest

C.R. Angus of the Sioux Ordnance Depot pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses in a hearing held before County Judge Robert A. Barlow Friday. A warrant for him had been issued by County Attorney L.M. Clinton and Angus was arrested that same day by Deputy Sheriff Arnold Braasch.

He was accused of pretending to Myrtle Vetter, owner of Myrtle's Beauty Shop, that he had organized a bowling team representing Sidney and was procuring shirts for the team. He proposed to advertise the beauty shop in lettering on the back of one shirt for $6.75. He also made the same proposition to and accepted $6.75 each from Christner Bath and Massage and from The Star Market, police said.

He was fined $5 plus $7.80 in costs and will have to reimburse the three parties that paid him for the advertising.

Kimball Farmer Is Guilty Of Assault

A Kimball County district court jury, after deliberating for more than 12 hours, announced early Friday morning that it found Marvin Frank, 19, Kimball farmer, guilty of assault with intent to rape Clara May Buddecke, 17, Kimball.

The first witness placed on the stand as the prosecution opened its case was the girl, who testified that Frank and Roger Swanson, 18, Kimball farmer, picked her up and took her for a ride last April 14. She said that the boys drove to a lonely spot in the country where they assaulted her. Swanson appeared as a witness for the defense during the trial and has been bound over to district court to stand trial on an assault with intent to rape charge. Swanson has not entered a plea in district court.

Local Income Distribution Above State, U.S. Averages

According to a nationwide survey of incomes and income distribution, Cheyenne County families have been upgrading their financial position in the last few years.

Most of them have benefitted from the rising scale of wages and salaries in the local area.

As a result, a larger proportion of them are now to be found in the middle and upper income brackets and a smaller proportion in the lower ranges than ever before.

In Cheyenne County, it is shown, the general income level is higher than it was and the spread relatively good.

Some 80.2 percent of the households in the local area had net cash incomes, after payment of their taxes, of $5,000 or more in the year.

It was a larger proportion than in most parts of the United States where it was 73.6 percent. In the State of Nebraska it was 71.8 percent.

Because only cash income was considered in the survey, full justice is not done to farm families, as no allowances are made for income-in-kind and lower living costs on the farm.

As to the various income groupings in Cheyenne County, the breakdown shows that 17.9 percent of local households have a net of $5000 to $8000, that 17.5 percent are at the $8000 to $10,000 level and that 45.7 percent have $10,000 or over. The others have $5000 or less after taxes.

Lengthy Energy Rate Hearing Will Continue

A two and a half hour public hearing Tuesday on a rate increase by KN Energy was taken up mostly by verbal sparring among attorneys and engineers for KN and the Nebraska Municipal Power Pool. In the end, the Sidney City Council voted to continue the hearing to an unspecified date.

Meanwhile, the nearly 9 percent increase, which took effect Oct. 1, will remain in place for the local rate area, which includes Cheyenne and Kimball counties and Chappell. KN representatives from Colorado said part of the increase is the result of under-collection from the last 12 months. Questioned by lawyers for NMPP, Bud Becker, assistant general counsel for KN, said the reason for the under-collection is it is impossible to predict energy use and other factors when rates are being set.

Lar Voss, a consulting engineer from Fort Collins, Colorado, said KN is passing high gas costs on to consumers.

"These are substantial costs, twice market value, being passed on to consumers," Voss said, a claim that KN's attorneys called untrue and irrelevant to the hearing.

Voss added that while KN cannot make a profit from the gas rate increases, its subsidiaries can. Under prodding by Voss, Becker agreed that subsidiaries could make a profit.

Becker lashed out at the format of the hearing, saying that rather than fielding questions from the general public, KN's representatives were "faced with a panel of inquisitors who have a vested interest in making KN look bad."

Rich Fiegenschuh, a Sidney resident, asked how KN could be in business in this area for more than 30 years and not make a profit.

Becker responded that the company makes money by owning distribution piping, not by selling gas.

Advocates Criticize Safety of Aerial Predator Hunts

When Carmela and Ray "Brownie" Brown moved to their house on 6th Avenue in Sidney in 1952, it had a very unique feature. One of the rooms was not originally intended to be a living space at all, having been built in 1872 to house ammunition and gunpowder.

It was the former Powder House, built for use by the soldiers at Fort Sidney. It had been a small stand-alone structure, similar to a large round garden shed with thick walls. Previous owners of the house the Brown's moved into had simply incorporated the structure into their living space because it was sturdy—very sturdy.

As the Brown family grew, the house and its unique extra room became too small and they moved into the house next door.

As a testament to the sturdy build of the Powder House, it remains standing solitary in the yard now—and the house that was attached to it is gone.

Until Friday, that unique piece of history was still owned by the Brown family. In a generous gift to the Cheyenne County Historic Association and, in turn, the citizens of Cheyenne County, Carmela Brown donated the Powder House and the property it is set on, handing the deed and keys over to association President Glenn Johnson.

"We had always planned on donating it," Carmela Brown, now a widow, told the Sun-Telegraph. "It just seemed the time was right."

Johnson said the gift was significant because the building is one of three structures in the area dating back to the Fort Sidney era that still are set on an original foundation. The other two are the Fort Sidney Museum and Post Commander's Home.

USDA Farm Service Agency County Committee Elections Open for Voting

December 5 Is Last Day to Return Ballots

LINCOLN, Nebraska, Nov. 14, 2022 — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) began mailing ballots last week for the Farm Service Agency (FSA) county and urban county committee elections to all eligible agricultural producers and private landowners across the country. Elections are occurring in certain Local Administrative Areas (LAA) for these committee members who make important decisions about how federal farm programs are administered locally. Producers and landowners must return ballots to their local FSA county office or have their ballots be postmarked by Dec. 5, 2022, in order for those ballots to be counted.

“County committees provide an opportunity for producers to play a meaningful role in delivering farm programs, but in order for county committees to be effective, they must truly represent all who are producing,” said John Berge, state executive director for FSA in Nebraska. “Voting in these elections is your opportunity to help ensure our county committees in Nebraska reflect the diversity of our agriculture. Your voice and vote matter, so don’t miss your chance to cast your ballot.”

Producers must participate or cooperate in an FSA program to be eligible to vote in the county committee election. A cooperating producer is someone who has provided information about their farming or ranching operation but may not have applied or received FSA program benefits. Additionally, producers who are not of legal voting age but supervise and conduct farming operations for an entire farm are eligible to vote in these elections.

Each committee has from three to 11 elected members who serve three-year terms, and at least one seat representing an LAA is up for election each year. Ballots must be in the mail or delivered in person by close of business Dec. 5, 2022, to be counted. Newly elected committee members will take office Jan. 1, 2023.

Producers can find out if their LAA is up for election and if they are eligible to vote by contacting their local FSA county office. Eligible voters who do not receive a ballot in the mail can request one from their local FSA county office. Visit farmers.gov/service-locator to find your local USDA Service Center and fsa.usda.gov/elections for more information.
